TONIGHT: Ten Alps-produced Dispatches on failures in Afghanistan

Tonight the Ten Alps' Blakeway produced Dispatches programme, 'Afghanistan - Mission Impossible?', will air on Channel 4 investigating the Head of Britain's armed forces' claim that NATO allies failed to 'adequately resource' the troops in Afghanistan.

The programme, which made headlines on Saturday 4 April in The Telegraph and on the Channel 4 News, features:

- A candid interview with The Head of Britain's Armed Forces, Sir Jock Stirrup where he reasserts his accusation Nato failed its armed forces
- An analysis of how over the past six months more British troops have died fighting the Taliban than at any other period in the war
- How Stephen Grey, a Sunday Times reporter, gained access to Britain's top military generals and asked whether the mission has lost direction and if anyone would ever know the war was won

'Afghanistan - Mission Impossible?' tonight at 8pm, 6 April 2009, on Channel 4.
